1. Friends, who lead laborious days,
Friends, whose zeal deserves just praise,
Welcome to the gentle ways,
Summer evenings bring!

2. Now's the time fresh health to gain,
Give repose to wearied frame,
Come, then, join the sacred strain,
Grateful voices sing.

3. Let your thoughts to heaven turn,
Strive the grace of God to earn,
Duty's lessons ever learn,
Clearer than before.

4. So your holidays shall prove
Holy days of peace and love,
Crowned with blessings from above,
Showered in ample store.

5. Then to work again repair,
Nerved with strength in strain to bear,
Bravely meeting every care,
As you live or die.

6. And when life's full thread be spun,
Labours past and tasks all done,
Heavn'ly rest awaits each one
Safe with God on high.
